Our School Story

We revisited our scanning data through collaborative dialogue. Check our our new action post to see what one small action we can take and how we will know it's making a difference in student learning.

Next steps: Make purposeful observations to gather evidence on how our "one small action" is helping students communicate their thinking and connections

Captured Moments

Here is what happened this week, told through the eyes of our Gr. 6/7 learning detectives. Students in Div. 1 took time to capture learning moments throughout the week. How might we include all student voices?

What are you learning right now?

"I'm teaching someone how to play chess for our chess tournament." - S, Div 1

What about this interests you? Why does it matter?

"It interests me because it's a good strategy game. It's good because you have to use your critical and creative thinking."

What are you learning right now?

"This is my inequality project. It's about child' rights." - P, Div 2

What about this interests you? Why does it matter?

"It's interesting because I'm a child and other people don't have the same rights as I do."

What are you learning right now?

"I'm learning how to make a clay bishop for our chess tournament." - T, Div 1

What about this interests you? Why does it matter?

"The blending is interesting. You can work on your fine motor skills and that's important."

What are you learning right now?

"We're learning about the book 'The Wild Robot'. - L, Div 4

What about this interests you? Why does it matter?

"It interests me because it's fun to draw and it matters because it helps me focus on the book so my brain doesn't get distracted."
